Comparative Politics of the Global South: Linking Concepts and Cases

December Green and Laura Luehrmann

Praise for the previous editions:

“This book outshines any other text I have seen.... The authors do a wonderful job of synthesizing a great deal of information and presenting it in terms that should engage an audience of undergraduates.”

—Dwight Hahn,
John Carroll University

“The writing style is lively and the detail is impressive.... another welcome innovation is the welding together of the discussion of key issues with the eight country cases.” —Ross Burkhart, Boise State University

December Green and Laura Luehrmann show how history, economics, and politics converge to create the realities of life in the Global South.

In this new edition, the authors continue to offer an innovative blend of theory and empirical material as they introduce the politics of what was once called the “third world.” They consistently link theoretical concepts to a set of eight contemporary case studies: China, Egypt, Indonesia, Iran, Mexico, Nigeria, Peru, and Zimbabwe.

A central theme throughout the new edition is how the Covid-19 pandemic has worked as a hinge event—accelerating troubling trends and amplifying longstanding socioeconomic and political problems.

Other features of the fifth edition include:

- Thoroughly revised chapters on economic and development issues.
- An update on regime transitions and the rise of authoritarianism.
- Analysis of the status of conflict, terrorist movements, and weapons proliferation.
- An expanded discussion of populism and nationalism in both the economic and political spheres.
- A comparison of the range of experiences and responses to the pandemic.

The result is a text that has been successfully designed to challenge students’ preconceptions, arouse their curiosity, and foster critical thinking.

December Green and Laura Luehrmann are professors of political science at Wright State University.

3RD EDITION

Doing Comparative Politics: An Introduction to Approaches and Issues

Timothy C. Lim

“Covering basic theoretical approaches in the field and then applying them to specific cases or questions, this text helps students to see how theory is actually used in practice.” —Michael Baun, Valdosta State University

Praise for the previous editions:

“A concise, accessible and well-organized approach suitable for both undergraduate and graduate courses.... Doing Comparative Politics puts students in the driver’s seat as they apply what they learn to timely, substantive debates in political science.”

—Nicholas Spina, Edgewood College

“Unlike most other texts in comparative politics that focus on country cases, Lim’s valuable book gives students the skills to become critical thinkers and to actually DO comparative politics themselves.” —Claudio Holzner, University of Utah

“Superbly demonstrates how comparativists use theory to grapple with important questions. Undergraduate and graduate students alike will find this engaging and well-structured text useful.... Most important, Lim makes abstract concepts accessible in ways that are neither patronizing nor trivial.” —Laura Luehrmann, Wright State University

This systematic, user friendly, and refreshingly unusual introduction to comparative politics has not only been updated and refined in the third edition, but also fully revised to reflect the impact of major new developments in world politics.

Designed to teach students how to think comparatively and theoretically about the world they live in, the book is organized around a set of critical questions—why are poor countries poor? why is East Asia relatively prosperous? what makes a democracy? how can we explain terrorism and genocide? what leads people to mobilize around a cause?—each the topic of a full chapter. These issue chapters are based on the solid methodological and theoretical foundation laid out in the first part of the book, and the entire text is enhanced with case studies and graphics.

Timothy C. Lim is professor of political science at California State University, Los Angeles.

6TH EDITION

Comparative Politics: Exploring Concepts and Institutions Across Nations

Gregory S. Mahler

Praise for the previous editions:

“This is the quintessential introduction to comparative politics. It provides a sophisticated foundation of institutional analysis, respects historical influences, and above all, carefully focuses on the key mechanisms that drive politics in the contemporary world.” —Gerhard Peters, Citrus College

“Clearly written and intelligently organized, this is a comprehensive and well-informed overview of the structures and actors at the center of politics in countries around the world. It is a perfect text for introductory courses in comparative politics!”

—Mark Tessler, University of Michigan

Among the many tools available for teaching comparative politics, Gregory Mahler’s text stands out for its unique exploration of concepts, structures, and illustrative cases.

The first part of the book, after setting the stage with a discussion of comparison as a method of inquiry, focuses on the core institutions that affect politics within nations, as well as on political behavior and civil society. In Part 2, those same topics are systematically revisited as they interact in the context of nine detailed, up-to-date (through 2018) country studies.

This well-integrated, cross-national, and accessible approach serves perfectly to provide students with the tools and perspectives that they need to better understand the diverse political systems of today’s world.

Gregory S. Mahler is academic dean emeritus and research professor of politics at Earlham College.

Autocracy and Resistance in the Internet Age

Rachel Vanderhill

“Well conceptualized, and well researched.... Vanderhill systematically explores the political effects of social media on authoritarian regimes in Central Asia and the Middle East.” —Marc Lynch, George Washington University

How do autocratic governments exploit communication technology in their efforts to maintain power? Can prodemocracy activists successfully use that same technology to support the overthrow of autocratic rulers? Rachel Vanderhill addresses these two questions, exploring in detail how social media are both aiding and undermining autocratic regimes in the Middle East, North Africa, and the former Soviet republics.

Rachel Vanderhill is associate professor in the Department of Government and International Affairs at Wofford College.

What Is Political Islam?

Jocelyne Cesari

“Highly recommended.” —Choice

“One of the most significant books on political Islam written.” —Harun Karcic, Al Sharq Forum

“Cesari provides a new and powerful framework for understanding the conditions of possibility for political Islam in a wide range of countries.... Her book represents the most important work on political Islam to appear in more than a decade.” —Peter Mandaville, George Mason University

“A grounding work.... Cesari adds nuance to the question of how modernity evolved in the Muslim context and unravels common assumptions and cemented theories pertaining to political Islam.... Fascinating and unique.” —Melissa Finn, University of Waterloo

The debate continues unabated: Is political Islam decipherable through the tenets of the Islamic tradition—or is it a tool of secular actors who shrewdly misuse religious references? Is it an expression of modernity, or a return to the past? Eschewing these dichotomies, Jocelyne Cesari demystifies the continuous process of interaction between secular and religious actors and institutions that is at the core of political mobilization in the name of Islam. Ranging from Senegal to Egypt, from Indonesia to Iraq, her analysis provides a much needed corrective to the conventional wisdom.

Jocelyne Cesari is professor of religion and politics at the University of Birmingham; senior research fellow at Georgetown University’s Berkley Center for Religion, Peace, and World Affairs; and professorial fellow at the Australian Catholic University.

Women’s Paths to Power: Female Presidents and Prime Ministers, 1960–2020

Evren Celik Wiltse and Lisa Hager

“Women’s Paths to Power not only fills a gap in the current literature on female prime ministers and presidents serving from 1960 to 2020, but also provides an important lens through which to view the paths taken by women executive leaders in the future.” —Dianne Bystrom, Iowa State University

From Brazil to Bangladesh, Liberia to Switzerland, Malta to the Marshall Islands, more and more women are rising to the top level of political leadership. What can we learn from this? What kinds of political conditions and institutions pave the way for a woman’s ascendance to power? Are there common pathways to power? How much do family ties matter? Is political activism an important factor?

Evren Celik Wiltse and Lisa Hager answer these questions, and more, in their comprehensive study encompassing all of the women presidents and prime ministers around the world from the 1960s through 2020.

Evren Celik Wiltse is associate professor of political science and Lisa Hager is assistant professor of political science at South Dakota State University.
