Fragile Nation, Shattered Land: The Modern History of Syria

James A. Reilly

“Reilly’s Fragile Nation, Shattered Land is a gem. Reilly does what only a master historian who has studied Syria for a lifetime could do: he condenses 500 years of history into 200 pages, and almost every page delivers a sparkling insight set off by a simple and elegant style. This book should be read by anyone wishing to understand the deeper social and cultural dimensions of Syria’s modern crisis.”

—Joshua Landis, University of Oklahoma

“This book will be a certain, and immediate, classic. It is likely to be the best book published on Syria for a long time.... Outstanding.”

—Michael Provence, University of California, San Diego

“An epic history of modern Syria, this book is vital to understanding the roots of what has become the most devastating conflict of the 21st century.... Reilly helps explain the roots of Syria’s tragedy and the possible futures that may await it.”

—Murtaza Hussain, The Intercept

How did the lands that are today Syria survive the vicissitudes of centuries of Ottoman, Egyptian, and French rule, only to stand now in ruins, shattered by a brutal civil war? To provide answers, James Reilly traces five centuries of Syrian history, from the Ottoman period to the present.

Reilly brings to life the myriad historical, cultural, social, economic, and political factors that have bound Syrians together, as well as those that have torn them apart. Drawing on extensive primary sources and recent historiography in English, French, and Arabic, he has written an essential book for those who want to understand not only contemporary Syria, but also the Middle East region.

James A. Reilly is professor of history at the University of Toronto.

Islamism: A New Totalitarianism

Mehdi Mozaffari

“A welcome addition to the existing literature on this most complex phenomenon.”

—The Muslim World Book Review

“Timely and important.... a book that finally makes Islamism intelligible to Western students of history and politics.”

—Roger Griffin,
Oxford Brookes University

“An important contribution to debates on the role of totalitarian ideologies and movements in the 21st century.” —Uwe Backes, Hannah Arendt Institute, TU Dresden

From the reviews of the Danish edition:

“With its conceptual clarifications and analytical tools, [this book] opens the door to an understanding of the relation between Islam, Islamism, Islamization, and events in the Middle East.” —Lone Nørgaard, Jyllands-Posten

What exactly does Islamism mean? And what explains its violent expansion in recent decades? Are there similarities between Islamism and classical totalitarian regimes and ideologies? Will it fail, as those regimes did in Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union; or can it adapt effectively to changing realities? What are the fundamental strengths and weaknesses of the Islamic project?

Addressing these questions within a context both historical and global, Mehdi Mozaffari provides an important new framework for understanding the full impact of Islamism in the Middle East and beyond.

Mehdi Mozaffari is professor emeritus of political science at Aarhus University.

Changing Saudi Arabia: Art, Culture, and Society in the Kingdom

Sean Foley

“Outstanding and original.... Foley provides a fascinating portrait of a side of Saudi society that is rarely considered: its creative class.”

—Jonathan Fulton,
Zayed University

“Refreshing and engaging.... Pushing back against stereotypes, Foley explores the creative production of Saudis, whom we learn are vibrantly engaged in reshaping the social and cultural dynamics of their country.... A must read for anyone interested in the future of Saudi Arabia.” —Natana J. DeLong-Bas, Boston College

T. E. Lawrence once observed that Saudi Arabia had “so little art” that it could “be said to have no art at all.” Whether that was once the case is arguable. But that it is not the case now is clear in Sean Foley’s Changing Saudi Arabia.

Exploring the contemporary arts movement in Saudi Arabia in the context of the kingdom’s changing political realities, Foley finds that artists are expressing thoughts and feelings that the Saudi public typically has not felt safe to articulate. These artists are promoting discussions about the need for peaceful and progressive social reform—and they are doing it in ways that escape the wrath of the absolute monarchy. Without confronting the state or the political system, Foley argues, Saudi society is exercising significant agency through its cultural production.

Sean Foley is associate professor of history at Middle Tennessee State University.

JOCELYNE CESARI

What Is Political Islam?

Jocelyne Cesari

“Provid[es] insightful analysis of the relationship between Islam and modern states.... Highly recommended.” —Choice

“Cesari provides a new and powerful framework for understanding the conditions of possibility for political Islam in a wide range of countries.... Her book represents the most important work on political Islam to appear in more than a decade.” —Peter Mandaville, George Mason University

“A grounding work.... Cesari adds nuance to the question of how modernity evolved in the Muslim context and unravels common assumptions and cemented theories pertaining to political Islam.... Fascinating and unique.”

—Melissa Finn,
University of Waterloo

The debate continues unabated: Is political Islam decipherable through the tenets of the Islamic tradition—or is it a tool of secular actors who shrewdly misuse religious references? Is it an expression of modernity, or a return to the past? Eschewing these dichotomies, Jocelyne Cesari demystifies the continuous process of interaction between secular and religious actors and institutions that is at the core of political mobilization in the name of Islam.

Cesari traces the origins of political Islam to the inception of the modern nation-state, revealing the decisive role of secular nationalist rulers in its creation. In the process, she puts to rest the myth that there has been a lack of modernization in the Muslim world—and shows how that myth has proven dangerous. Ranging from Senegal to Egypt, from Indonesia to Iraq, her analysis provides a much needed corrective to the “conventional wisdom.”

Jocelyne Cesari is professor of religion and politics at the University of Birmingham; senior research fellow at Georgetown University’s Berkley Center for Religion, Peace, and World Affairs; and professorial fellow at the Australian Catholic University.

The Arab World Upended: Revolution and Its Aftermath in Tunisia and Egypt

David B. Ottaway

“Ottaway’s ... account of the revolutionary upheavals in Tunisia and Egypt (2010–16) is essential reading for all those seeking to better understand the significance of these events.” —Rosemary Hollis, Middle East Journal

After the autocratic regimes in the seemingly unassailable police states of Tunisia and Egypt suddenly collapsed in 2011, the Islamic parties that took over quickly succumbed in turn to further massive uprisings, this time by disaffected secularists and, in the case of Egypt, with the support of the army. What explains this? And why do the current regimes in both countries remain so fragile?

Addressing these questions, drawing on years of first-hand, in-depth research, David Ottaway explores the causes of the revolutions in Tunisia and Egypt, the reasons for their radically differing outcomes, and the likely trajectory of the two countries’ political development.

David B. Ottaway, after receiving a Ph.D. in public law and government from Columbia University, worked as a foreign correspondent and then an investigative reporter in Washington, DC, for 35 years. At present, he is a Middle East Fellow at the Woodrow Wilson Center.

Israel's National Identity: The Changing Ethos of Conflict

Neta Oren

"An important contribution to the literature on political culture in contemporary Israel." —Ilan Peleg, Lafayette College

In a country whose citizens have experienced prolonged exposure to intractable conflict, are there unique features to be found in Israeli society's core beliefs? And how—and to what effect—have those beliefs changed across the decades? To answer these questions, Neta Oren deeply explores Israel's political culture.

Oren focuses especially on two circular processes: the two-way relationship between the course of the Arab-Israeli conflict and Israel's national identity; and efforts by leaders to shape that national identity while, in turn, shifts in public opinion exert influence on leadership positions. Drawing on extensive data including speeches, party platforms, school texts and curriculums, and public opinion polls, she offers both a unique analysis and a rich reference resource.

Neta Oren is visiting scholar at the School for Conflict Analysis and Resolution, George Mason University.

Comparative Politics of the Global South: Linking Concepts and Cases

December Green and Laura Luehrmann

Praise for the previous editions:

"This book outshines any other text I have seen.... The authors do a wonderful job of synthesizing a great deal of information and presenting it in terms that should engage an audience of undergraduates." —Dwight Hahn, John Carroll University

December Green and Laura Luehrmann offer an innovative blend of theory and empirical material as they introduce the politics of what was once called the "third world." They consistently link theoretical concepts to a set of eight contemporary case studies: China, Egypt, Indonesia, Iran, Mexico, Nigeria, Peru, and Zimbabwe.

Features of the fourth edition, revised and updated from cover to cover, include: an entirely new case study, Egypt; analysis of the status of regime transitions around the world; a "report card" on the Millennium Development Goals; attention to the UN Global Goals for Sustainable Development and the New Development Bank; more discussion of contentious politics, social mobilization, and everyday forms of resistance; and new material on such continuing challenges as migration, human trafficking, weapons proliferation, pandemic diseases, and the impact of climate change.

December Green and Laura Luehrmann are professors of political science at Wright State University.
