Inside African Politics

Kevin C. Dunn and Pierre Englebert

Praise for the first edition:
“Will no doubt become the standard text for years to come: a sharply written, well-informed, and completely up-to-date book that should find a wide audience beyond the classroom, as well.” —Nicolas van de Walle, Foreign Affairs

“A comprehensive, scholarly, and readable guide to (mostly) post-1990 Africa. Highly recommended.” —Choice

“A superior textbook. Inside African Politics will appeal to undergraduates looking for an introduction to African politics, as well as to graduate students searching for broad theoretical discussions.” —Gonidzashe Munemo, Williams College

“A comprehensive tour d’horizon of African politics, as well as an incisive review of existing scholarship. Inside African Politics is destined to become a standard reference for teaching and research.” —Michael Bratton, Michigan State University

The second edition of Inside African Politics, updated throughout to reflect political developments across the continent, not only provides thorough coverage of the full range of core topics, but also furthers an awareness and understanding of key theoretical issues and current debates.

Drawing on their extensive teaching and fieldwork experience, Kevin Dunn and Pierre Englebert offer:

• A straightforward, accessible style, making even complex ideas easy to understand
• A balanced approach, exposing multiple perspectives on contested issues
• A focus on both states and citizens, politics from above and below
• Discussions of existing policies, as well as policy implications of different approaches
• An abundance of rich data and illustrative examples

The result is both an essential text and a long-term resource for students and scholars alike.

Kevin C. Dunn is professor of political science at Hobart and William Smith Colleges. Pierre Englebert is professor of politics and H. Russell Smith Professor of International Relations at Pomona College.

Africa’s International Relations: Balancing Domestic and Global Interests
Beth Elise Whitaker and John F. Clark

“Brings together a deep appreciation for the region’s historical context with important theoretical insights from the major traditions of international relations theory. This text will be of great value to both students and policymakers eager to understand how African countries relate to each other and the rest of the world.” —Michael Byron Nelson, Monmouth College

“To explain Africa’s international relations in one book is a daunting challenge, one that the authors have fully met… I will certainly adopt this book as a required text for my classes.” —Emmanuel Uwalaka, St. Louis University

Comprehensive and engaging, this timely introduction to Africa’s international relations explores how power, interests, and ideas influence interactions both among the continent’s states and between African states and other actors in the global arena.

How has history shaped the international relations of African states and peoples? What role does identity play? How are foreign policies linked to domestic political dynamics, and especially to the pursuit of regime security? How are states grappling with the tensions between sovereignty and external pressures? These are among the questions answered as the authors address a wide range of ongoing and emerging challenges, all in historical and theoretical context. In addition, a case study at the end of each chapter illustrates key concepts and reflects an ongoing debate. The result is an ideal text for students, as well as an invaluable resource for researchers and policymakers.

Beth Elise Whitaker is associate professor of political science at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. John F. Clark is professor of politics and international relations at Florida International University.

Africa’s Insurgents: Navigating an Evolving Landscape
Morten Bøås and Kevin C. Dunn, editors

“Comprehensive, timely, empirically rich, and conceptually innovative... sure to pique the interest of a wide range of readers.”
—Matthew I. Mitchell, University of Saskatchewan

Mid an array of shifting national, regional, and global forces, how have African insurgents managed to adapt and survive? And what differences and similarities can be found, both among the continent’s diverse rebellions and guerilla movements and between them and movements elsewhere in the world? Addressing these issues, the authors of Africa’s Insurgents explore how new groups are emerging and existing ones changing in response to an evolving landscape.

Morten Bøås is research professor at the Norwegian Institute of International Affairs. Kevin C. Dunn is professor of political science at Hobart and William Smith Colleges.

Coping with Crisis in African States
Peter M. Lewis and John W. Harbeson, editors

“Provides a lucid approach to assessing the factors that create vulnerabilities, or possibilities for resilience, in the face of crisis... complemented by rich empirical country chapters and clear policy recommendations.”
—Rachel Beatty Riedl, Northwestern University

Although large-scale conflicts, political upheavals, and social violence are common problems throughout Africa, individual countries vary greatly in both their susceptibility to these crises and their capacities for responding effectively. What accounts for this variance? How do crises emerge, and how are they resolved? Are there institutions and policies that can help to manage adverse shocks?

The authors of Coping with Crisis in African States assess the capability for crisis management in countries across the continent, shedding new light on the sources of instability in the region, as well as on comparative questions of state capacity and resilience.

Peter M. Lewis is associate professor and director of the African Studies Program at Johns Hopkins University’s School of Advanced International Studies. John W. Harbeson is emeritus professor of political science at the CUNY Graduate Center and the City College of New York.

Understanding Contemporary Africa
April A. Gordon and Donald L. Gordon, editors

Praise for the previous editions:
“Excellent.... A remarkably sound text for introductory courses on Sub-Saharan Africa.”
—Journal of Developing Areas

“A welcome breath of fresh air.” —Orbis

“A well chosen and integrated whole.... Deserving of a prominent place in university programmes.” —Canadian Journal of Development Studies

This new edition of Understanding Contemporary Africa has been thoroughly revised to reflect the many significant events and trends of the past six years—seismic political changes, the impact of new information technology, the strong presence of China and other foreign powers, and much more.

The authors provide current analyses not only of history, politics, and economics, but also geography, environmental concerns, population shifts, and social and cultural issues. Each topic is covered in an accessible style, but with reference to the latest scholarship. Maps, photographs, and a table of basic political data enhance the text, which has made its place as the best available introduction to this diverse and complex continent.

April A. Gordon is professor emeritus of sociology and director of the Women’s Programs at Winthrop University. Donald L. Gordon is professor of political science and director of the Richard W. Riley Institute of Government, Politics, and Public Leadership at Furman University.

3RD EDITION

African Development: Making Sense of the Issues and Actors

Todd J. Moss and Danielle Resnick

Praise for the previous editions:
“Thoughtful, well written.... [This] book leads the student to a deep understanding of the actors at work in Africa’s development.”
—Barry Riddell, Canadian Journal of Development Studies

“Treating both political and economic themes with admirable clarity, [Moss] walks the reader briskly through Africa’s colonial legacy, the syndrome of personal rule, the economic liabilities of conflict, and the challenges of democratic reform.... Provides a thorough and critical but fair-minded treatment in a style that is plainspoken and often witty.” —Peter Lewis, Foreign Affairs

“An excellent introduction to current political and economic issues in Africa.... Highly recommended.” —Choice

Both authoritative and accessible, African Development introduces the issues, actors, and institutions at play in development trajectories across sub-Saharan Africa.

This new edition, thoroughly updated, includes an entirely new chapter devoted to key demographic trends in the region, especially rapid urbanization and the distinct “youth bulge.” There is also a review of major democratic gains and disappointments since 2011; analysis of renewed internal armed conflicts; and attention to the contemporary sovereign debt crisis relative to the structural adjustment debt of earlier decades.

The book uniquely brings to life the collective impact of history, economics, and politics on development in the region.

Todd J. Moss is senior fellow at the Center for Global Development and non-resident scholar at Rice University. Danielle Resnick is senior research fellow in the Development Strategy and Governance Division of the International Food Policy Research Institute.

Women and Development in Africa: How Gender Works

Michael Kevane

Praise for the previous edition:

“A unique and rare book. It is a welcome addition to the literature on women and development... Kevane challenges economists and scholars of development to ask better questions, develop well-informed hypotheses, adopt more rigorous methods, and test their assumptions through solid empirical research.”

—Alii Mari Tripp, Politics & Gender

“An insightful book for undergraduates and graduate students with an interest in gender, international development, economics, or African studies.”

—Michael M. Walker, WID Bulletin

This new edition of Women and Development in Africa incorporates the results of more than a decade of new empirical and theoretical research. Michael Kevane provides a broad overview of the sources of underdevelopment in Africa and the role of gender in economic transactions, as well as a cogent analysis of the gendered realities of such issues as land rights, the control of labor, the marriage market, health care, education, and political representation.

Michael Kevane is associate professor of economics at Santa Clara University.

The Time of Youth: Work, Social Change, and Politics in Africa

Alcinda Honwana

“This clearly written, well-structured study summarizes the contemporary situation of African youth, but also regularly gestures toward a more global analysis of the generation that grew up in the shadow of structural adjustment and neoliberalism... Highly recommended.” —Choice

Most young Africans are living in a state of “waithood,” argues Alcinda Honwana, finding themselves suspended in limbo between childhood and adulthood. Failed neoliberal economic policies, bad governance, and political instability have caused stable jobs to disappear; and without jobs that pay living wages, these young people cannot become fully participating members of society. But that is only part of the story.

Examining the lives of young people in Mozambique, Senegal, South Africa, and Tunisia, Honwana focuses on the transformative potential of the waithood generation as young people come to believe that the struggle to overcome their predicament requires radical social and political change.

Mediation and Governance in Fragile Contexts: Small Steps to Peace

Dekha Ibrahim Abdi and Simon J. A. Mason

“For those of us who had the privilege of working with Dekha Ibrahim Abdi, Mediation and Governance in Fragile Contexts is a wonderful chance to hear once again the clarity, vision, and persuasiveness of her voice for peace. For those who never had the privilege of knowing her, this book is the next best thing.” —Ken Menkhaus, Davidson College

“This is a rare opportunity ... to get the inside track on what is actually involved in achieving sustainable peace.” —Pat Johnson, formerly Interpeace, Somali Region

The result of a long collaboration between a Kenyan-Somali mediator and a Swiss scholar-practitioner, Mediation and Governance in Fragile Contexts introduces an innovative, practical approach to resolving an enduring issue: How can conflicts be resolved in polarized societies?

This approach breaks out of the insider/outside dichotomy to develop a framework for achieving peace in the most challenging of contexts—a framework that unites outsider perspectives on mediation methodology with the rich experiences and reflections that only local peace practitioners can provide. The authors lay out the framework step by step, present case studies that show it in action, and clarify how local peace and security structures can act as a bridge between short-term mediation and long-term state-building efforts around the world.

The late Dekha Ibrahim Abdi’s path took her from teaching at a rural Kenyan school to being renowned as a global peacemaker. In 2007, she received the Right Livelihood Award (often referred to as the Alternative Nobel Prize), which honors “those offering practical and exemplary answers to the most urgent challenges facing us today.” Simon J. A. Mason is senior researcher and head of the Mediation Support Team at the Center for Security Studies, ETH Zurich.

How did a group with its origins in a small Marxist-Leninist insurgency in northern Ethiopia transform itself into a party (the EPRDF) with eight million members and a hierarchy that links even the smallest Ethiopian village to the center? How do the legacies of protracted civil war and rebel victory over the brutal Derg regime continue to shape contemporary Ethiopian politics? And can the EPRDF, after widespread protests and a state of emergency, transform itself under new leadership to meet popular demands?

Answering these questions in his comprehensive study of nearly three decades of Ethiopian politics, Terrence Lyons argues that the very structures that enabled the ruling party to overcome the challenges of a war-to-peace transition are the promised dramatic reforms, Lyons observes, the powerful authoritarian ruling

Politics in Southern Africa: Transition and Transformation

Gretchen Bauer and Scott D. Taylor

“A very readable volume that should be extremely attractive for African politics courses.” —Choice

“A must-needed and comprehensive text and analysis of the sociopolitical economy of the eight major states of Southern Africa.” —I. William Zartman, Africa Today

Gretchen Bauer and Scott Taylor systematically examine politics and society across southern Africa. After introducing the themes that guide their analysis, in each of eight country studies they trace the country’s historical origins and then analyze state institutions, political parties and civil society, fundamentals of the political economy, and the major challenges faced by state and society. In the final section of the book, they investigate issues that transcend regional borders: women and politics, living with HIV/AIDS, and southern Africa’s role on the continent and in the world.

Gretchen Bauer is professor of political science at the University of Delaware.
