NEW—3RD EDITION!

Politics and Society in the Contemporary Middle East

Michele Penner Angrist, editor

Praise for the previous editions:

“One of the most lucidly written, highly objective surveys on the politics of the Middle East ... available today.” —Elhum Haghghat, Review of Middle East Studies

—Choice

“Excellent.... An extremely clear and comprehensive introduction to the politics of the Middle East, far superior to other available texts.”
—Samer Shehata,
Georgetown University

“An excellent text.... The important themes that are established in the early chapters are carried consistently through the country cases that follow. And all is written in a style that will be easily accessible, even enjoyable, to students.”
—Ellen Lust, Yale University

The rise and decline of ISIS in Iraq and Syria. Deepening authoritarianism in Turkey. The return to military-led rule in Egypt. The impact of Crown Prince Mohammad bin Salman in Saudi Arabia. Heightened sectarian tensions throughout the region. These are among the many current topics covered in the third edition of the acclaimed Politics and Society in the Contemporary Middle East.

With the Arab Spring uprisings now viewed with the perspective of time, this new edition also provides an accessible analysis of the longer-term political currents, changes, and dynamics set in motion by those dramatic events. Offering insightful analyses and a wealth of accessible information, it encourages comparative, critical thinking by students at all levels.

Michele Penner Angrist is professor of political science and dean of studies at Union College.

Understanding the Contemporary Middle East

Jillian Schwedler, editor

“A must read for specialists in the field and an excellent choice for broad surveys.... Highly recommended.” —Choice

Praise for the previous editions:

“Expertly analyze[s] the crucial issues facing the Middle East as a region and its relation to the rest of the world.... An informative, objective, and much-needed addition to the ever-growing literature on the Middle East.... Essential.” —Choice

“A multi-dimensional picture of the Middle East that comes alive as you browse through the pages.... It is seldom that one comes across such a good introduction to the Middle East that could be used for both undergraduate and postgraduate level courses.” —Pinar Bilgin, Millennium

“A superb and engaging book profiling the region.... this unique volume is one of the few truly interdisciplinary books about the contemporary Middle East.” —Library Journal

The fourth edition of Understanding the Contemporary Middle East is fully revised and updated throughout to reflect the still-unfolding impact of the Arab Spring, the changing international environment, the impasse in the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, and much more. The book also includes an entirely new chapter on the role of women in the Middle East. Maps, photographs, and details of basic political data enhance the text, widely acknowledged as the best available introduction to the region.

Fragile Nation, Shattered Land: The Modern History of Syria

James A. Reilly

“Reilly’s Fragile Nation, Shattered Land is a gem. Reilly does what only a master historian who has studied Syria for a lifetime could do: he condenses 500 years of history into 200 pages, and almost every page delivers a sparkling insight set off by a simple and elegant style. This book should be read by anyone wishing to understand the deeper social and cultural dimensions of Syria’s modern crisis.” —Joshua Landis, University of Oklahoma

“This book will be a certain, and immediate, classic. It is likely to be the best book published on Syria for a long time.... Outstanding.” —Michael Provence, University of California, San Diego

“An epic history of modern Syria, this book is vital to understanding the roots of what has become the most devastating conflict of the 21st century.... Reilly helps explain the roots of Syria’s tragedy and the possible futures that may await it.” —Murtaza Hussain, The Intercept

“With his deep understanding of Syria, James Reilly has produced a masterpiece that illuminates the country’s convoluted past and tragic present.... If there is one book you have to read about Syria to better understand the reasons behind its fragility, this is it.” —Omer Taspinar, US National War College and the Brookings Institution

How did the lands that are today Syria survive the vicissitudes of centuries of Ottoman, Egyptian, and French rule, only to stand now in ruins, shattered by a brutal civil war? To provide answers, James Reilly traces five centuries of Syrian history, from the Ottoman period to the present.

Reilly brings to life the myriad historical, cultural, social, economic, and political factors that have bound Syrians together, as well as those that have torn them apart. Drawing on extensive primary sources and recent historiography in English, French, and Arabic, he has written an essential book for those who want to understand not only contemporary Syria, but also the Middle East region.

James A. Reilly is professor of history at the University of Toronto.

Beyond the Arab Spring: Authoritarianism and Democratization in the Arab World

Rex Brynen, Pete W. Moore, Bassel F. Salloukh, and Marie-Joëlle Zahar

“Provides a comprehensive explanatory framework with which to make sense of the Arab uprisings.”

—Jacob Høigilt,
Journal of Islamic Studies

“An insightful and thought-provoking volume which addresses both the forces which have sustained authoritarianism in the region and the roots of popular mobilization.” —Charis Bredin, Banipal

For years the authoritarian regimes of the Arab world displayed remarkable persistence. Then, beginning in December 2010, much of the region underwent rapid and remarkable political change. This volume explores the precursors, nature, and trajectory of the dynamics unleashed by the Arab Spring.

“Storm’s book [is] very valuable.... Highly recommended.” —Choice

What are the prospects for sustainable democracy in North Africa? Addressing that question, Lise Storm provides a rich analysis of party politics in the region.

Storm focuses on Tunisia, Morocco, and Algeria, examining the key characteristics and political dynamics of each country’s party system as they have evolved over time. Her research sheds light not only on the origins, development, and functioning of these parties, but also on their contribution to the survival of authoritarianism and their potential as vehicles for democratization.

Lise Storm is senior lecturer in Middle East politics at the Institute of Arab and Islamic Studies, University of Exeter.

The Arab World Upended: Revolution and Its Aftermath in Tunisia and Egypt

David B. Ottaway

“Ottaway’s ... account of the revolutionary upheavals in Tunisia and Egypt (2010–16) is essential reading for all those seeking to better understand the significance of these events.”

—Rosemary Hollis,
Middle East Journal

After the autocratic regimes in the seemingly unassailable police states of Tunisia and Egypt suddenly collapsed in 2011, the Islamic parties that took over quickly succumbed in turn to further massive uprisings, this time by disaffected secularists and, in the case of Egypt, with the support of the army. What explains this? And why do the current regimes in both countries remain so fragile?

Addressing these questions, drawing on years of first-hand, in-depth research, David Ottaway explores the causes of the revolutions in Tunisia and Egypt, the reasons for their radically differing outcomes, and the likely trajectory of the two countries’ political development.

David B. Ottaway, after receiving a Ph.D. in public law and government from Columbia University, worked as a foreign correspondent and then an investigative reporter in Washington, DC, for 35 years. At present, he is a Middle East Fellow at the Woodrow Wilson Center.

Women, Islam, and Resistance in the Arab World

Maria Holt and Haifaa Jawad

“Timely and important.... The authors provide a much needed examination of the diverse ways in which Muslim women in the Arab world challenge repressive rule.... [This] is an essential book for scholars and students of political resistance, state repression, and gender politics.” —Alice J. Kang, Perspectives on Politics

“A richly nuanced analysis of the complex ways in which Muslim women have drawn strength from their religion in resisting inequality and violence, whether generated from within their own community or from the outside.”

—Michaëlle Browers, Middle East Journal

“Reveals a nuanced view of women’s own sense of their position within the community, their relationship to males, and their role in opposing external repression.” —Choice

How are women in the Arab world negotiating the male-dominated character of Islamist movements? Is their participation in the Islamic political project—including violent resistance against foreign invasion and occupation—the result of coercion, or of choice? Questioning assumptions about female powerlessness in Muslim societies, Maria Holt and Haifaa Jawad explore the resistance struggles taking place in Lebanon, Iraq, Palestine, and elsewhere in the Middle East from the perspectives of the women involved.

The authors make extensive use of vivid personal testimonies as they examine the influence of such factors as religion, patriarchy, and traditional practices in determining women’s modes of participation in conflicts. In the process, they add to our knowledge not only of how women are affected by political violence, but also of how their involvement is beginning to change the rules that govern their societies.

Maria Holt is reader in the Department of Political Science at the University of Westminster, London. Haifaa Jawad is senior lecturer in Islamic and Middle Eastern studies at the University of Birmingham.

Islamism: A New Totalitarianism

Mehdi Mozaffari

“A provocative, necessary, and divisive work.... Every sentence of this book can and should be used to spark off an intense debate on comparative studies regarding politics and religion.” —Tomás Dodds, Democratization

“A welcome addition to the existing literature on this most complex phenomenon.” —Tauseef Ahmad Parray, The Muslim World Book Review

“Timely and important.... a book that finally makes Islamism intelligible to Western students of history and politics.” —Roger Griffin, Oxford Brookes University

What exactly does Islamism mean? And what explains its violent expansion in recent decades? Are there similarities between Islamism and classical totalitarian regimes and ideologies? Will it fail, as those regimes did in Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union; or can it adapt effectively to changing realities? What are the fundamental strengths and weaknesses of the Islamic project?

Addressing these questions within a context both historical and global, Mehdi Mozaffari provides an important new framework for understanding the full impact of Islamism in the Middle East and beyond.

Mehdi Mozaffari is professor emeritus of political science at Aarhus University.

Modernizing Women: Gender and Social Change in the Middle East

Valentine M. Moghadam

Praise for the previous editions:

“One of the best studies of women and social change in the Middle East ever to be published.... superb.” —Choice

“Moghadam addresses a bewildering array of puzzling anomalies and, slicing skillfully through them, exposes their bare bones and substructure.”

—Middle East Journal

“A tour de force.... a cogent and lively book that thoughtfully considers the political and economic issues emanating from gender constructs in state-building and economic development.” —Feminist Collections

Valentine Moghadam’s seminal study of the gendered nature of political and social processes in the Middle East and North Africa has been fully updated to reflect more than a decade of major changes.

This new edition reflects an emphasis on the impacts of both globalization and democratization. It also includes entirely new chapters on the gender dynamics of conflicts in the region, on women and the Arab Spring, and on the achievements of women’s rights movements. The result is an indispensable contribution to our understanding of current popular struggles for modernity, democratization, and meaningful citizenship.

Valentine M. Moghadam is professor of sociology and director of the International Affairs Program at Northeastern University.

The Foreign Policies of Middle East States

Raymond Hinnebusch and Anoushiravan Ehteshami, editors

“Offers a rich and robust account of the foreign policies of Middle East and North African states, capturing how they are driven by the interplay of systemic, and subsystemic, domestic, and individual level forces in the region.” —Steven E. Lobell, University of Utah

Praise for the previous edition:

“The key components of foreign policy decision-making, the ‘why,’ ‘who,’ ‘what,’ and ‘how,’ are lucidly explained and amply illustrated.... [A] very good and useful book.” —David Capitanchik, International Affairs

“A highly useful introduction to the Middle East subsystem for undergraduates or graduates without previous exposure.” —Choice

This new edition of The Foreign Policies of Middle East States reflects the momentous events and shifting dynamics that have occurred in the region in the nearly fifteen years since the first edition was published. Working within a common analytical framework, the authors offer a theoretically grounded, systematic examination of the foreign policies of eleven states.

Raymond Hinnebusch is professor of international relations and Middle East politics at the University of St Andrews. Anoushiravan Ehteshami is professor of international relations at the School of Government and International Affairs, University of Durham.

Men in the Sun and Other Palestinian Stories

Ghassan Kanafani, translated by Hilary Kilpatrick

“Far from being a simple parable, [Men in the Sun] depicts some often hidden aspects of the complex social and political reality of the Palestinians ... and is also a well-told story.... We should not forget the excellent translation of Hilary Kilpatrick which not only manages to preserve the subtle voice of the narrator, but also matches accurately the sober and lucid prose in Arabic for which Kanafani was hugely admired.” —Samir el-Youssef, Banipal

This important collection includes the stunning novella Men in the Sun (1962), the basis of the film The Deceived. Also in the volume are “The Land of Sad Oranges” (1958), “If You Were a Horse ...” (1961), “A Hand in the Grave” (1962), “The Falcon” (1961), “Letter from Gaza” (1956), and an excerpt from Umm Saad (1969).

Palestine's Children: Returning to Haifa and Other Stories

“[Kanafani] unabashedly depicts the hardship of life in the refugee camps, the agony of succumbing to numerous political or ideological shifts, and life nearly devoid of hope.... The novella Returning to Haifa speaks volumes about the enduring traumas of war.... In a moving, concise manner, this story touches upon many small issues that together contribute to the conflict between the Palestinians and Zionists including identity, language, class strife, and the deceptively difficult task of defining ‘homeland.’”

—Christine Dykgraaf, MESA Bulletin

ISBN: 978-0-89410-890-7 pb $16.95/£15.50

The Palestinian Wedding: A Bilingual Anthology of Contemporary Palestinian Resistance Poetry

edited and translated by A.M. Elmessiri, illustrated by Kamal Boullata

“It is, quite simply, very important to see all these poems together still.... Reading [The Palestinian Wedding] we learn a great deal about Palestine and about ourselves as human beings.” —Stephen Watts, Banipal

Opening with Mahmud Darwish’s “The Roses and the Dictionary” and Samih al-Qasim’s “To Najib Mahfuz,” this powerful bilingual collection is organized around six themes: aesthetics of the revolution, elegies, love of Palestine, steadfastness, resistance, and victory.

ISBN: 978-0-89410-096-3 pb $22.50/£20.50

The Palestinian People: Seeking Sovereignty and State

Mustafa Kabha

Mustafa Kabha plumbs the complex story of the Palestinian people, from the revolts of 1936–1939 to the present, focusing on their efforts to establish a viable independent state—and the internal factors that have thwarted them.

With unparalleled access to primary sources, as well as secondary material in Arabic, Hebrew, and English, Kabha provides an abundance of new information in a sweeping historical context.

Uniquely combining his overarching narrative with the narratives of the multiple Palestinian communities throughout the Middle East, he makes a groundbreaking contribution to our understanding of the political, social, and cultural dimensions of Palestinian history.

Mustafa Kabha is associate professor of history at the Open University of Israel.

Egypt's Tahrir Revolution

Dan Tschirgi, Walid Kazzuha, and Sean F. McMahon, editors

"An in-depth analysis of the antecedents, process, and implications of former President Hosni Mubarak's overthrow." —Alexandra BetGeorge, Middle East Journal

"What a pleasure to have a volume about the Tahrir Revolution from a team of scholars who had front row seats to the unfolding of the extraordinary events that defined it.... I learned something from each and every chapter." —Raymond William Baker, Trinity College

The 18-day revolt that ended Hosni Mubarak's 30 years of rule marked a historic turning point in the political fortunes not only of Egypt, but of the entire Middle East. While the impact of that seminal event will continue to unfold for years, this volume, written by members of the Department of Political Science at the American University in Cairo, presents an authoritative exploration of the circumstances and implications—both political and theoretical—of what has come to be known as the Tahrir Revolution.

Dan Tschirgi and Walid Kazzuha are professors of political science and Sean F. McMahon is assistant professor of political science at the American University in Cairo.

Politics and Culture in Contemporary Iran: Challenging the Status Quo

Abbas Milani and Larry Diamond, editors

"This valuable book ... provide[s] an objective and critical analysis of Iran's political development."

—Choice

"This finely crafted book ... allows readers to go beyond the official representation of the country and gain a deeper appreciation of the complexity of a rich and vibrant society." —Library Journal

Despite the relative calm apparent in Iran today, there is unmistakable evidence of political, social, and cultural ferment stirring beneath the surface. The authors of Politics and Culture in Contemporary Iran—a group of scholars, activists, and artists—explore that unrest and its challenge to the legitimacy and stability of the present authoritarian regime. Ranging from political theory to music, from human rights law to social media, their contributions reveal the tenacious and continually evolving forces that are at work resisting the status quo.

Abbas Milani is Moghadam Director of Iranian Studies at Stanford University and codirector, with Larry Diamond, of the Iran Democracy Project at Stanford's Hoover Institution. Larry Diamond is senior fellow at the Freeman Spogli Institute for International Studies, Stanford University, and the Hoover Institution.

Qatar: Politics and the Challenges of Development

Matthew Gray

“Provide[s] much-needed and very useful help for understanding the rise of Qatar to international prominence.”

—Michael Herb,
Perspectives on Politics

“A rich analysis of the major developments that characterized the rule of Emir Hamad (1995–2013) and that frame the political legacy that Emir Tamim inherits.”

—Kristian Coates Ulrichsen, International Affairs

A small isthmus in the central Gulf, with barely 300,000 citizens and a total population of 1.7 million, Qatar has risen rapidly from obscurity to become the world's wealthiest country per capita. Matthew

Gray traces this spectacular rise, exploring the development of Qatar's economy, the patterns of its politics, its role on the world stage, and its prospects for the future.

Matthew Gray is associate professor in the Centre for Arab and Islamic Studies at the Australian National University.

The Arab Gulf States: Beyond Oil and Islam

Sean Foley

“An ambitious and original work of analysis and insight.”

—Philipp O. Amour,
International Studies Review

“Make[s] the reader realize that the people of the Arab Gulf states are much more like us than we are likely to imagine.”

—Karen K. Clark,
Digest of Middle East Studies

“An extremely welcome addition.... This book should be read by all scholars, students, and analysts studying this vitally important region.”

—James Russell,
Middle East Journal

“This is a wonderful addition to the literature, advancing scholarly understanding while being eminently accessible to the interested lay person.”

—Gerd Nonneman,
International Affairs

If petroleum buys political legitimacy in the Arab Gulf states, how can we explain the rise of dissent and calls for political reform despite sustained oil revenues? The answer, according to Sean Foley, lies in political, social, and economic dynamics that have been brewing beneath the surface for years. Foley goes beyond popular stereotypes to identify crucial forces that are conspiring to disrupt the status quo in the region.

Sean Foley is associate professor of history at Middle Tennessee State University.

Oranges in the Sun: Short Stories from the Arabian Gulf

edited and translated by Deborah S. Akers and Abubaker A. Bagader

“[A] gem of a book.... These short stories uncover some of the preoccupations confronting Arab Gulf states.... They open a rare window into a world that is [usually] closed to the non-Arabic reader.”

—Joseph A. Kechichian, Gulf News

“These 49 fluently translated stories from seven Arab countries around the Persian Gulf give a broad picture of the 20th-century short fiction in the area.... Highly recommended.”—Choice

“An excellent array of tales from the Arabian Gulf ... that explore both the regional culture and universal emotions.”—Katherine Boyle, Booklist

The stories in Oranges in the Sun embody a range of emotional and material concerns of the Arab peoples of the Gulf region. The introduction to the collection provides historical context, as well as a broad overview of the selections.

Deborah S. Akers is assistant professor of anthropology at Miami University. Abubaker A. Bagader is professor of sociology at King Abdulaziz University.

Saudi Arabia and Ethiopia: Islam, Christianity, and Politics Entwined

Haggai Erlich

“A comprehensive discussion of ‘the ever-changing interplay between three cultural systems: the Christian-Ethiopian, the Saudi-Wahhabi, and the Islamic-Ethiopian.’ ... It provides important insights into the religious dimensions of international relations and is an excellent introduction to the new modes of foreign relations that characterize global affairs in the twenty-first century.” —John Voll, American Historical Review

“A pioneering study.... Rich in fresh insights, sources, issues and lines of argument and analysis.... Erlich’s work constitutes a major and original contribution to Ethiopian studies in particular and the geopolitics and modern history of the Middle East.” —Hussein Ahmed, Journal of Islamic Studies

What is the significance of Islam’s growing strength in Ethiopia? And what is the impetus for the Saudi financing of hundreds of new mosques and schools in the country, the establishment of welfare organizations, and the spread of the Arabic language? Haggai Erlich explores the interplay of religion and international politics as it has shaped the development of modern Ethiopia and Saudi Arabia.

Tracing Saudi-Ethiopian relations from the 1930s to the present, Erlich highlights the nexus of concrete politics and the conceptual messages of religion. His fresh approach encompasses discussions of the options and dilemmas facing Ethiopians, both Christians and Muslims, across multiple decades; the Saudis’ nuanced conceptualization of their Islamic “self” in contrast to Christian and Islamic “others”; and the present confrontation between Ethiopia’s apolitical Islam and Wahhabi fundamentalism. It also provides new perspectives on both the current dilemmas of the Wahhabi kingdom and the global implications of the evolving Saudi-Ethiopian relationship.

Haggai Erlich is professor emeritus of Middle East and African history at Tel Aviv University.

Christians and Jews in the Ottoman Empire: The Abridged Edition, with a New Introduction

Benjamin Braude, editor

Praise for the original edition:

“Provides a hitherto missing, yet indispensable, introductory treatment of the role played by non-Muslim peoples in the multinational Ottoman empire.” —Middle East Journal

“An exceptionally rich resource ... on a very important and highly interesting topic.” —The Muslim World

How did the vast Ottoman Empire, stretching from the Balkans to the Sahara, endure for more than four centuries despite its great ethnic and religious diversity? The classic work on this plural society, the two-volume Christians and Jews in the Ottoman Empire, offered seminal reinterpretations of the empire’s core institutions and has sparked more than a generation of innovative work since it was first published in 1982. This new, abridged, and reorganized edition, with a substantial new introduction and bibliography covering issues and scholarship of the past thirty years, has been carefully designed to be accessible to a wider readership.

Benjamin Braude is associate professor of history at Boston College.
