6TH EDITION

Comparative Politics: Exploring Concepts and Institutions Across Nations

Gregory S. Mahler

Praise for the previous editions:

“This is the quintessential introduction to comparative politics. It provides a sophisticated foundation of institutional analysis, respects historical influences, and above all, carefully focuses on the key mechanisms that drive politics in the contemporary world.” —Gerhard Peters, Citrus College

“Clearly written and intelligently organized, this is a comprehensive and well-informed overview of the structures and actors at the center of politics in countries around the world. It is a perfect text for introductory courses in comparative politics!”

—Mark Tessler, University of Michigan

Among the many tools available for teaching comparative politics, Gregory Mahler’s text stands out for its unique exploration of concepts, structures, and illustrative cases.

The first part of the book, after setting the stage with a discussion of comparison as a method of inquiry, focuses on the core institutions that affect politics within nations, as well as on political behavior and civil society. In Part 2, those same topics are systematically revisited as they interact in the context of nine detailed, up-to-date (through 2018) country studies.

This well-integrated, cross-national, and accessible approach serves perfectly to provide students with the tools and perspectives that they need to better understand the diverse political systems of today’s world.

Gregory S. Mahler is academic dean emeritus and research professor of politics at Earlham College.

3RD EDITION

Doing Comparative Politics: An Introduction to Approaches and Issues

Timothy C. Lim

“Covering basic theoretical approaches in the field and then applying them to specific cases or questions, this text helps students to see how theory is actually used in practice.” —Michael Baun, Valdosta State University

Praise for the previous editions:

“A concise, accessible and well-organized approach suitable for both undergraduate and graduate courses.... Doing Comparative Politics puts students in the driver’s seat as they apply what they learn to timely, substantive debates in political science.”

—Nicholas Spina, Edgewood College

“Unlike most other texts in comparative politics that focus on country cases, Lim’s valuable book gives students the skills to become critical thinkers and to actually DO comparative politics themselves.” —Claudio Holzner, University of Utah

“Superbly demonstrates how comparativists use theory to grapple with important questions. Undergraduate and graduate students alike will find this engaging and well-structured text useful.... Most important, Lim makes abstract concepts accessible in ways that are neither patronizing nor trivial.” —Laura Luehrmann, Wright State University

This systematic, user friendly, and refreshingly unusual introduction to comparative politics has not only been updated and refined in the third edition, but also fully revised to reflect the impact of major new developments in world politics.

Designed to teach students how to think comparatively and theoretically about the world they live in, the book is organized around a set of critical questions—why are poor countries poor? why is East Asia relatively prosperous? what makes a democracy? how can we explain terrorism and genocide? what leads people to mobilize around a cause?—each the topic of a full chapter. These issue chapters are based on the solid methodological and theoretical foundation laid out in the first part of the book, and the entire text is enhanced with case studies and graphics.

Timothy C. Lim is professor of political science at California State University, Los Angeles.

4TH EDITION

Comparative Politics of the Global South: Linking Concepts and Cases

December Green and Laura Luehrmann

Praise for the previous editions:

“This book outshines any other text I have seen.... The authors do a wonderful job of synthesizing a great deal of information and presenting it in terms that should engage an audience of undergraduates.” —Dwight Hahn, John Carroll University

“The writing style is lively and the detail is impressive.... another welcome innovation is the welding together of the discussion of key issues with the eight country cases.” —Ross Burkhardt, Boise State University

In this now classic text, December Green and Laura Luehrmann show how history, economics, and politics converge to create the realities of life in the Global South.

The authors offer an innovative blend of theory and empirical material as they introduce the politics of what was once called the “third world.” They consistently link theoretical concepts to a set of eight contemporary case studies: China, Egypt, Indonesia, Iran, Mexico, Nigeria, Peru, and Zimbabwe.

Features of the fourth edition, revised and updated from cover to cover, include:

- An entirely new case study, Egypt.
- Analysis of the status of regime transitions around the world.
- A “report card” on the Millennium Development Goals.
- More discussion of everyday forms of resistance.
- New material on such continuing challenges as migration, human trafficking, weapons proliferation, pandemic diseases, and the impact of climate change.

The result is a text that has been successfully designed to challenge students’ preconceptions, arouse their curiosity, and foster critical thinking.

December Green and Laura Luehrmann are professors of political science at Wright State University.

Understanding Revolution

Patrick Van Inwegen

“An excellent primer.... Highly recommended. All undergraduate, graduate, and research collections.” —Choice

“One of the best teaching texts I have seen for undergraduate courses on revolution and political violence.” —Michael D. Kanner, University of Colorado

Understanding Revolution concisely, but thoroughly, explains one of the most fundamental sources of political change in the modern world. Designed to be accessible to undergraduate students, the book systematically explores such questions as:

- What should be defined as a revolution?
- Is there a “typical” pattern to the course of a revolution?
- What are the roles of ideologies, structures (e.g., the state, class structures, the international system), and individuals in shaping revolutions?
- What causes groups to mobilize behind revolutionary leaders?
- What happens after a revolutionary group assumes power, or fails?

The discussion highlights points of agreement and debate within the social science literature, and brief case studies of revolutions and revolutionary movements bring concepts to life.

Patrick Van Inwegen is associate professor of political science at Whitworth University.

Islamism: A New Totalitarianism

Mehdi Mozaffari

“A provocative, necessary, and divisive work.... Every sentence of this book can and should be used to spark off an intense debate on comparative studies regarding politics and religion.” —Tomás Dodds, Democratization

“A welcome addition to the existing literature on this most complex phenomenon.” —Tauseef Ahmad Parray, The Muslim World Book Review

“Timely and important.... a book that finally makes Islamism intelligible to Western students of history and politics.” —Roger Griffin, Oxford Brookes University

“An important contribution to debates on the role of totalitarian ideologies and movements in the 21st century.” —Uwe Backes, Hannah Arendt Institute, TU Dresden

What exactly does Islamism mean? And what explains its violent expansion in recent decades? Are there similarities between Islamism and classical totalitarian regimes and ideologies? Will it fail, as those regimes did in Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union; or can it adapt effectively to changing realities? What are the fundamental strengths and weaknesses of the Islamic project?

Addressing these questions within a context both historical and global, Mehdi Mozaffari provides an important new framework for understanding the full impact of Islamism in the Middle East and beyond.

Mehdi Mozaffari is professor emeritus of political science at Aarhus University.

Democracy in Crisis: Why, Where, How to Respond

Roland Rich

“I have rarely, if ever, heard either the problems of democratic politics or the kind of solutions we need to find for them better articulated than in this book.”

—Gareth Evans, Australian National University

“An incisive and honest analysis of democracy trends around the world.”

—Theodore Piccone, Brookings Institution

“An extremely eloquent, extraordinarily well written, and impressively informed piece of work. Rich provides a highly readable and accessible run-through of all the main challenges with which democracy is currently beset.” —Richard Youngs, Carnegie Europe

Democracy is in crisis. After the hope engendered by the Third Wave, democracies around the world are beleaguered with threats from multiple sources. What are these threats? Where did they come from? And how can the challenges to democratic governance best be overcome?

Grappling with these questions, Roland Rich interprets the danger signs that abound in the United States and Europe, in Asia and the Arab World, in Africa and Latin America, and offers innovative strategies for turning the tide.

Roland Rich is on the faculty of the Department of Political Science at Rutgers University. Previously, he served as executive head of the UN Democracy Fund (2007–2014), director of the Centre for Democratic Institutions at the Australian National University (1998–2005), and in the Australian Foreign Service.

Surprising News: How the Media Affect—and Do Not Affect—Politics

Kenneth Newton

“An impressive study that brings a new and refreshing perspective to the study of the relation between media and politics.... Newton enters into a lively dialogue with some of the key authors in this field.”

—Marc Hooghe, Leuven University

“Would I buy it? Absolutely! It is well argued, broadly supported, and highly enlightening.”

—Rudiger Schmitt-Beck, University of Mannheim

What role do the media play in influencing political life and shaping public opinion and behavior? Do they support—or undermine—our democratic beliefs and institutions? Claims about the media’s powerful influence are frequently made, but where is the evidence?

Kenneth Newton scrutinizes these complex questions. Recognizing that differing forms of political communication have differing effects on differing people around the world, Newton goes further to ask why this occurs, and how. The answers that he presents in Surprising News offer a deeply researched, enlightening challenge to conventional wisdom in this age of fake news, post-truth, and claims about how the new digital media have transformed politics.

Kenneth Newton is professor emeritus of comparative politics at the University of Southampton.
