NEW—6TH EDITION!

Understanding Contemporary Africa

Peter J. Schroeder, editor

Praise for the previous editions:

“A welcome breath of fresh air.” —Orbis

“Excellent.... A remarkably sound text for introductory courses on Sub-Saharan Africa.” —Journal of Developing Areas

“A well chosen and integrated whole.... Deserving of a prominent place in university programmes.” —Canadian Journal of Development Studies

The sixth edition of Understanding Contemporary Africa, and the first under the editorship of Peter Schroeder, combines the historic strengths of the previous editions with coverage of new topics suggested over the years by the many instructors who regularly assign the text in their classes.

Entirely new chapters on the politics of public health, the changing role of women, and LGBTQ rights, along with new treatments of such classic topics as geography, history, politics, economics, international relations, kinship, religion, and more, make for an unparalleled introduction to the complexities of Africa today.

Peter J. Schroeder is professor of political science at Loyola University Chicago.

The Making of Contemporary Africa: The Development of African Society Since 1800

Bill Freund

Praise for the previous editions:
“A landmark in African historiography... Well planned and clearly written.” —John Lonsdale, Journal of African History

This comprehensive yet accessible text critically traces the complex trajectory of African society, culture, economy, and politics across more than two centuries. Appearing nearly two decades after the previous edition was published, the third edition of The Making of Contemporary Africa has not only been revised throughout, but also includes two entirely new chapters: one specifically on the twenty-first century and one on postindependence cultural and social history.

Bill Freund is professor emeritus of economic history at the University of KwaZulu-Natal.

2nd Edition

Inside African Politics

Kevin C. Dunn and Pierre Englebert

Praise for the previous edition:
“Will no doubt become the standard text for years to come: a sharply written, well-informed, and completely up-to-date book that should find a wide audience beyond the classroom, as well.” —Nicolas van de Walle, Foreign Affairs

“A comprehensive, scholarly, and readable guide to (mostly) post-1990 Africa. Highly recommended.” —Choice

“A superior textbook. Inside African Politics will appeal to undergraduates looking for an introduction to African politics, as well as to graduate students searching for broad theoretical discussions.” —Ngonidzashe Munemo, Williams College

“An incisive review of existing scholarship. Inside African Politics is destined to become a standard reference for teaching and research.” —Michael Bratton, Michigan State University

The second edition of Inside African Politics, updated throughout to reflect political developments across the continent, not only provides thorough coverage of the full range of core topics, but also furthers an awareness and understanding of key theoretical issues and current debates. Drawing on their extensive teaching and fieldwork experience, Kevin Dunn and Pierre Englebert offer:

• A straightforward, accessible style, making even complex ideas easy to understand
• A balanced approach, exposing multiple perspectives on contested issues
• A focus on both states and citizens, politics from above and below
• Discussions of existing policies, as well as policy implications of different approaches
• An abundance of rich data and illustrative examples

The result is both an essential text and a long-term resource for students and scholars alike.

Kevin C. Dunn is Donald R. Harter Professor of political science at Hobart and William Smith Colleges. Pierre Englebert is H. Russell Smith Professor of international relations at Pomona College.

Inside African Politics by Kevin C. Dunn and Pierre Englebert, 2nd Edition

Inside African Politics by Kevin C. Dunn and Pierre Englebert, 2nd Edition
Africa’s International Relations: Balancing Domestic and Global Interests
Beth Elise Whitaker and John F. Clark

“Brings together a deep appreciation for the region’s historical context with important theoretical insights from the major traditions of international relations theory. This text will be of great value to both students and policymakers eager to understand how African countries relate to each other and the rest of the world.” —Michael Byron Nelson, Monmouth College

“To explain Africa’s international relations in one book is a daunting challenge, one that the authors have fully met.... I will certainly adopt this book as a required text for my classes.” —Emmanuel Uwalaka, St. Louis University

Comprehensive and engaging, this timely introduction to Africa’s international relations explores how power, interests, and ideas influence interactions both among the continent’s states and between African states and other actors in the global arena.

How has history shaped the international relations of African states and peoples? What role does identity play? How are foreign policies linked to domestic political dynamics, and especially to the pursuit of regime security? How are states grappling with the tensions between sovereignty and external pressures? These are among the questions answered as the authors address a wide range of ongoing and emerging challenges, all in historical and theoretical context. In addition, a case study at the end of each chapter illustrates key concepts and reflects an ongoing debate. The result is an ideal text for students, as well as an invaluable resource for researchers and policymakers.

Beth Elise Whitaker is associate professor of political science at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. John F. Clark is professor of politics and international relations at Florida International University.

US Policy Toward Africa: Eight Decades of Realpolitik
Herman J. Cohen

“A concise and invaluable diplomatic history of US relations with Africa.... Few individuals have Cohen’s experience and perspective.” —Witney Schneidman, Former Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for African affairs

“Excellent.... No one interested in US relations with Africa should fail to read this lively account.” —Ambassador David Passage, Former US Ambassador to Botswana

Herman Cohen draws on both the documentary record and his years of on-the-ground experience to provide a uniquely comprehensive survey and interpretation of nearly eight decades of US policy toward Africa.

Tracing how this policy has evolved across successive administrations since 1942 (beginning with President Franklin D. Roosevelt’s third term in office), Cohen illuminates the debates that have taken place at the highest levels of government; shows how policy toward Africa has been affected over the years by US relations with Europe, the Soviet Union, the Middle East, and most recently China; and points to the increasing reliance of Western economic interests on Africa’s natural resources. His deeply informed narrative reveals the roles not only of circumstance and ideology, but also of personalities, in the formulation and implementation of US foreign policy.

Herman J. Cohen was a member of the US Foreign Service for thirty-eight years, posted to embassies in France, the Democratic Republic of Congo, Uganda, Zambia, and Zimbabwe. He was US ambassador to Senegal and The Gambia and served as assistant secretary of state for Africa under President George H. W. Bush. Subsequently, he was senior adviser in the Africa region at the World Bank. He is now president of Cohen and Woods, an international consulting firm.

The Fates of African Rebels: Victory, Defeat, and the Politics of Civil War
Christopher Day
“Theoretically sophisticated and empirically rich, this is an impressive contribution to the literature on African conflicts. Day offers innovative and compelling arguments while exploring fundamental questions about the fates of African rebels.”—Kevin Dunn, Hobart and William Smith Colleges
What determines the outcome for rebels in contemporary African civil wars? How are “victory” and “defeat” measured? Is there any connection between a rebel group’s organization and its fate? What implications do the answers to these questions have for policymakers concerned with ongoing armed conflicts? Addressing these issues and more, Christopher Day explores the relationship between rebel groups and regime politics in Africa.
Christopher Day is associate professor of political science at the College of Charleston.

Poverty and Inequality:
Diagnosis, Prognosis, and Responses
Crain Soudien, Vasu Reddy, and Ingrid Woolard, editors
“A rich and timely contribution to a national reflection on the establishment and quality of South Africa’s democratic nation state.” —Alex Irwin, former South African Minister of Public Enterprises

Can the interconnected problems of poverty and inequality in South Africa be explained in ways that are distinctive from those that apply in other contexts and countries? How can efforts to solve these problems fruitfully move forward? Is taxation on wealth the answer? Addressing these and related questions, the authors provide a textured understanding of the multiple issues involved.

Crain Soudien is CEO of the Human Sciences Research Council. Vasu Reddy is dean of the Faculty of Humanities at the University of Pretoria. Ingrid Woolard is professor and dean of the Faculty of Economic and Management Sciences at Stellenbosch University.

3RD EDITION
African Development:
Making Sense of the Issues and Actors
Todd J. Moss and Danielle Resnick
Praise for the previous editions:
“Thoughtful, well written... [This] book leads the student to a deep understanding of the actors at work in Africa’s development.” —Barry Riddell, Canadian Journal of Development Studies
“Treating both political and economic themes with admirable clarity, [Moss] walks the reader briskly through Africa’s colonial legacy, the syndrome of personal rule, the economic liabilities of conflict, and the challenges of democratic reform.... Provides a thorough and critical but fair-minded treatment in a style that is plainspoken and often witty.” —Peter Lewis, Foreign Affairs
“An excellent introduction to current political and economic issues in Africa... Highly recommended.” —Choice

Both authoritative and accessible, African Development introduces the issues, actors, and institutions at play in development trajectories across sub-Saharan Africa.

This new edition, thoroughly updated, includes an entirely new chapter devoted to key demographic trends in the region, especially rapid urbanization and the distinct “youth bulge.” There is also a review of major democratic gains and disappointments since 2011; analysis of renewed internal armed conflicts; and attention to the contemporary sovereign debt crisis relative to the structural adjustment debt of earlier decades.

The book uniquely brings to life the collective impact of history, economics, and politics on development in the region.

Todd J. Moss is senior fellow at the Center for Global Development and non-resident scholar at Rice University. Danielle Resnick is senior research fellow in the Development Strategy and Governance Division of the International Food Policy Research Institute.

Women and Development in Africa: How Gender Works

Michael Kevane

Praise for the 1st edition:
“A unique and rare book. It is a welcome addition to the literature on women and development... Kevane challenges economists and scholars of development to ask better questions, develop well-informed hypotheses, adopt more rigorous methods, and test their assumptions through solid empirical research.”
—Michael M. Walker, WID Bulletin

This new edition of Women and Development in Africa incorporates the results of more than a decade of new empirical and theoretical research. Michael Kevane provides a broad overview of the sources of underdevelopment in Africa and the role of gender in economic transactions, as well as a cogent analysis of the gendered realities of such issues as land rights, the control of labor, the marriage market, health care, education, and political representation.

Michael Kevane is associate professor of economics at Santa Clara University.

CONTENTS
Exploring Gender and Development • Women and Development in Africa • Models and Methods • The Land Tenure Rights of African Women • Constraints and Opportunities in the World of Work • The Marriage Market • Bargaining Power at Home • Preferring Sons over Daughters • The Gendering of Education • Getting Capital to Women • Emerging Movement For—and Against—Gender Equality.

The Time of Youth: Work, Social Change, and Politics in Africa

Alcinda Honwana

“This clearly written, well-structured study summarizes the contemporary situation of African youth, but also regularly gestures toward a more global analysis of the generation that grew up in the shadow of structural adjustment and neoliberalism.... Highly recommended.”
—Choice

Most young Africans are living in a state of “waithood,” argues Alcinda Honwana, finding themselves suspended in limbo between childhood and adulthood. Failed neoliberal economic policies, bad governance, and political instability have caused stable jobs to disappear; and without jobs that pay living wages, these young people cannot become fully participating members of society. But that is only part of the story.

Examining the lives of young people in Mozambique, Senegal, South Africa, and Tunisia, Honwana focuses on the transformative potential of the waithood generation as young people come to believe that the struggle to overcome their predicament requires radical social and political change.

Alcinda Honwana is visiting professor in the Development Policy and Practice program at the Open University.

Neva Again: Hip Hop Art, Activism, and Education in Post-Apartheid South Africa

Adam Haupt, Quentin Williams, H. Samy Alim, and Emile Jansen, editors

The culmination of decades of work on hip hop culture and activism, Neva Again weaves together the many varied and rich voices of the dynamic South African hip hop scene. The contributors—including scholars, activists, and the artists themselves—present a powerful reflection of the potential of youth art, culture, music, language, and identities to shape both politics and world views.

Adam Haupt is professor of media studies at the University of Cape Town. Quentin Williams is senior lecturer in linguistics at the University of the Western Cape. H. Samy Alim is David O. Sears Presidential Endowed Chair in the Social Sciences and professor of anthropology and African American studies at the University of California, Los Angeles. Emile Jansen is founding member of Black Noise and Heal the Hood.

“In light of long-standing legacies of colonialism and imperialism, Southern scholars and African nations need alternative modalities and approaches to engage adequately in dialogue about past ‘injustices.’ A forward-looking view of social restitution... This is an invaluable piece of work.” —Chammah J. Kaunda, University of KwaZulu-Natal

Grappling with issues of privilege and injustice in four African countries, the authors of Moral Eyes draw on extensive interviews with university students to demonstrate how injustices not only evolve over time, but also find a place within the collective memory of young people. Their work, encompassing questions of religion, language, ethnicity, and race, powerfully demonstrates how injustice persists despite changes in political leadership and processes of democratization.
