Disability and Identity: Negotiating Self in a Changing Society

Rosalyn Benjamin Darling

“Revitalizes interactionist and identity scholarship of decades past while simultaneously paving the way for crucial future advancements.... Works like this help to prevent us from becoming entrenched within narrow, deterministic outlooks as scholars.”

—Alex I. Thompson, Symbolic Interaction

“An important step forward.... This book is a fascinating read for anyone interested in identity theory or disability studies.”

—Christopher Johnstone, American Journal of Sociology

“A foundational work for those who wish to explore this often-misunderstood topic.... Highly recommended.” —Choice

Rosalyn Darling offers a sweeping examination of disability identity, tracing its history and parsing the shifting forces that have shaped individual and societal understandings of ability and impairment across time.

Darling focuses on the relationship between societal views and the self-conceptions of people with mental and physical impairments. She also illuminates the impact of the disability rights movement, life-course dynamics, and race and gender in creating a diversity of disability identities. Her seminal work reveals the remarkable resilience of individuals in the face of profound social and material barriers, at the same time that it enhances our understanding of the construction and experience of “difference” in our changing society.

Rosalyn Benjamin Darling is professor emeritus of sociology at Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

Disability and Aging: Learning from Both to Empower the Lives of Older Adults

What is the lived experience of previously healthy older adults as they face disability in late life, and how is disability assimilated in their identity? How do prevailing practices facilitate—or limit—options for elders living with new disabilities?

To address these questions, Jeffrey Kahana and Eva Kahana uniquely synthesize disability and gerontological perspectives to explore both the unfolding challenges of aging and the practices and policies that can enhance the lives of older adults.

Jeffrey S. Kahana is associate professor of history and codirector of the Center on Aging and Policy at Mount Saint Mary College. Eva Kahana is Distinguished University Professor and Pierce T. and Elizabeth D. Robson Professor of the Humanities at Case Western Reserve University.
