Mohammed bin Salman: The Icarus of Saudi Arabia?

David B. Ottaway

“Excellent.... A thorough, insightful examination of what has happened in Saudi politics, what went wrong, and where the kingdom is going under Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman.” —Theodore Karasik, Gulf State Analytics

Mohammed bin Salman. A monarch-to-be without scruples? Or a visionary seeking a path to global power? A social reformer determined to bring his country into the twenty-first century? Or just another brutal dictator? A leader on the road to greatness, or one destined to follow in the footsteps of Icarus? Veteran Washington Post foreign correspondent David Ottaway draws on more than a half-century of observation and reporting to shed light on these conundrums at the heart of any attempt to understand Saudi Arabia—and the man who is poised to rule the country for decades to come.

David B. Ottaway has been covering Saudi Arabia, as a Washington Post journalist and Middle East bureau chief and then as a scholar, since the 1970s. At present, he is a Middle East fellow at the Woodrow Wilson Center.

Politics and Society in the Contemporary Middle East

Michele Penner Angrist, editor

Praise for the previous editions:

“One of the most lucidly written, highly objective surveys on the politics of the Middle East ... available today.” —Elhum Haghghat, Review of Middle East Studies

“Excellent.... An extremely clear and comprehensive introduction to the politics of the Middle East, far superior to other available texts.” —Samer Shehata, Georgetown University

“An excellent text.... The important themes that are established in the early chapters are carried consistently through the country cases that follow. And all is written in a style that will be easily accessible, even enjoyable, to students.” —Ellen Lust, Yale University

The rise and decline of ISIS in Iraq and Syria. Deepening authoritarianism in Turkey. The return to military-led rule in Egypt. The impact of Crown Prince Mohammad bin Salman in Saudi Arabia. Heightened sectarian tensions throughout the region. These are among the many current topics covered in the third edition of the acclaimed Politics and Society in the Contemporary Middle East.

With the Arab Spring uprisings now viewed with the perspective of time, this new edition also provides an accessible analysis of the longer-term political currents, changes, and dynamics set in motion by those dramatic events. Offering insightful analyses and a wealth of accessible information, it encourages comparative, critical thinking by students at all levels.

Michele Penner Angrist is professor of political science and dean of studies at Union College.

5TH EDITION

Understanding the Contemporary Middle East

Jillian Schwedler, editor

Praise for the previous editions:

“Expertly analyze[s] the crucial issues facing the Middle East as a region and its relation to the rest of the world.... An informative, objective, and much-needed addition to the ever-growing literature on the Middle East.... Essential.” —Choice

“A multi-dimensional picture of the Middle East that comes alive as you browse through the pages.... It is seldom that one comes across such a good introduction to the Middle East that could be used for both undergraduate and postgraduate level courses.” —Pinar Bilgin, Millennium

“A superb and engaging book profiling the region.... This unique volume is one of the few truly interdisciplinary books about the contemporary Middle East.” —Library Journal

The previous edition of Understanding the Contemporary Middle East was published soon after the Arab uprisings, and the authors—writing across disciplines—captured those moments of possibility. Now, more than six years later, the Middle East is substantially changed, with three protracted civil wars, several entrenched authoritarian regimes, possibly one emerging democracy, and social and economic conditions that have been profoundly affected by the new political environment.

This thoroughly revised and updated edition explores both the impact of recent events in shaping the region and the continuities with established patterns of political, economic, and social relations.

Jillian Schwedler is professor of political science at Hunter College and the Graduate Center, City University of New York.

CHANGING
Saudi Arabia

ART, CULTURE, & SOCIETY IN THE KINGDOM

NOW IN PAPERBACK!

Changing Saudi Arabia: Art, Culture, and Society in the Kingdom

Sean Foley

“A fascinating and multi-layered exploration of art and culture in the kingdom.... Changing Saudi Arabia is an important book.” —Caroline Montagu, Asian Affairs

“Foley’s book, by systematically detailing and analysing the Saudi arts and culture scene, critically informs our discussion about Saudi Arabia today and the ways in which it is or is not changing.” —Courtney Freer, LSE Middle East Centre

“Helps illustrate that the Kingdom has a vibrant cultural scene and cannot be reduced, nor properly understood, by simply focusing on the hoary themes of royals, oil and Islam.”
—Bernard Haykel, Middle East Journal

T.E. Lawrence once observed that Saudi Arabia had “so little art” that it could “be said to have no art at all.” Whether that was once the case is arguable. But that it is not the case now is clear in Sean Foley’s Changing Saudi Arabia.

Exploring the contemporary arts movement in Saudi Arabia in the context of the kingdom’s changing political realities, Foley finds that artists are expressing thoughts and feelings that the Saudi public typically has not felt safe to articulate. These artists are promoting discussions about the need for peaceful and progressive social reform—and they are doing it in ways that escape the wrath of the absolute monarchy. Without confronting the state or the political system, Foley argues, Saudi society is exercising significant agency through its cultural production.

Sean Foley is professor of history at Middle Tennessee State University.

Fragile Nation, Shattered Land: The Modern History of Syria

James A. Reilly

“An epic history of modern Syria, this book is vital to understanding the roots of what has become the most devastating conflict of the 21st century.”

—Murtaza Hussain, The Intercept

“A gem.... This book should be read by anyone wishing to understand the deeper social and cultural dimensions of Syria’s modern crisis.” —Joshua Landis, University of Oklahoma

“Likely to be the best book published on Syria for a long time.... Outstanding.”

—Michael Provence, University of California, San Diego

“Distills half a millennium of conflict and shifting alliances into a clear, eminently readable work that demystifies the origins and fault lines of the current crisis in Syria.... An essential book for anyone seeking to understand the modern Middle East.” —Publishers Weekly

How did the lands that are today Syria survive the vicissitudes of centuries of Ottoman, Egyptian, and French rule, only to stand now in ruins, shattered by a brutal civil war? To provide answers, James Reilly traces five centuries of Syrian history, from the Ottoman period to the present.

Reilly brings to life the myriad historical, cultural, social, economic, and political factors that have bound Syrians together, as well as those that have torn them apart. Drawing on extensive primary sources and recent historiography in English, French, and Arabic, he has written an essential book for those who want to understand not only contemporary Syria, but also the Middle East region.

James A. Reilly is professor of history at the University of Toronto.

2ND EDITION

The Foreign Policies of Middle East States

Raymond Hinnebusch and Anoushiravan Ehteshami, editors

“Offers a rich and robust account of the foreign policies of Middle East and North African states, capturing how they are driven by the interplay of systemic, and subsystemic, domestic, and individual level forces in the region.”

—Steven E. Lobell, University of Utah

Praise for the 1st edition:

“The key components of foreign policy decision-making, the ‘why,’ ‘who,’ ‘what,’ and ‘how,’ are lucidly explained and amply illustrated.... [A] very good and useful book.” —David Capitanchik, International Affairs

“A highly useful introduction to the Middle East subsystem for undergraduates or graduates without previous exposure.” —Choice

This new edition of The Foreign Policies of Middle East States reflects the momentous events and shifting dynamics that have occurred in the region in the nearly fifteen years since the first edition was published. Working within a common analytical framework, the authors offer a theoretically grounded, systematic examination of the foreign policies of eleven states.

Raymond Hinnebusch is professor of international relations and Middle East politics at the University of St Andrews. Anoushiravan Ehteshami is professor of international relations at the School of Government and International Affairs, University of Durham.

The Cross and the River: Ethiopia, Egypt, and the Nile

Haggai Erlich

“This fascinating book explores the relationship between Egypt and Ethiopia from early history through the end of the 20th century.... Clearly and elegantly written.”

—Eve M. Troutt Powell, International Journal of Middle East Studies

“Explodes many myths surrounding the historical relationship between Egypt and Ethiopia.... In chronicling the past, the author draws conclusions that shed light on the predicaments of the present.”

—Gamal Nkrumah, Al-Ahram Weekly Online

“It is meticulously researched, bridges countries and areas usually relegated to separate mental compartments, and elaborates in detail a theme of undeniable significance for both Egyptian and Ethiopian history.”

—Donald Malcolm Reid, American Historical Review

The ongoing Egyptian-Ethiopian dispute over the Nile waters is potentially one of the most difficult issues on the current international agenda, central to the very life of the two countries. Analyzing the context of the dispute across a span of more than a thousand years, The Cross and the River delves into the heart of both countries’ identities and cultures.

Haggai Erlich is professor emeritus of Middle East and African history at Tel Aviv University.

Christians and Jews in the Ottoman Empire: The Abridged Edition, with a New Introduction

Benjamin Braude, editor

Praise for the original edition:

“Provides a hitherto missing, yet indispensable, introductory treatment of the role played by non-Muslim peoples in the multinational Ottoman empire.”

—Middle East Journal

“An exceptionally rich resource ... on a very important and highly interesting topic.”

—The Muslim World

How did the vast Ottoman Empire, stretching from the Balkans to the Sahara, endure for more than four centuries despite its great ethnic and religious diversity? The classic work on this plural society, the two-volume Christians and Jews in the Ottoman Empire, offered seminal reinterpretations of the empire’s core institutions and has sparked more than a generation of innovative work since it was first published in 1982. This abridged and reorganized edition, with a substantial new introduction and bibliography covering issues and scholarship of the past thirty years, has been carefully designed to be accessible to a wider readership.

Benjamin Braude is associate professor of history at Boston College.

3RD EDITION

Modernizing Women: Gender and Social Change in the Middle East

Valentine M. Moghadam

Praise for the previous editions:

“One of the best studies of women and social change in the Middle East ever to be published.... Superb.”

—Choice

“Moghadam addresses a bewildering array of puzzling anomalies and, slicing skillfully through them, exposes their bare bones and substructure.”

—Middle East Journal

“A tour de force.... A cogent and lively book that thoughtfully considers the political and economic issues emanating from gender constructs in state-building and economic development.”

—Feminist Collections

Valentine Moghadam’s seminal study of the gendered nature of political and social processes in the Middle East and North Africa has been fully updated to reflect more than a decade of major changes.

This new edition reflects an emphasis on the impacts of both globalization and democratization. It also includes entirely new chapters on the gender dynamics of conflicts in the region, on women and the Arab Spring, and on the achievements of women’s rights movements. The result is an indispensable contribution to our understanding of current popular struggles for modernity, democratization, and meaningful citizenship.

Valentine M. Moghadam is professor of sociology and director of the International Affairs Program at Northeastern University.

Palestine's Children: Returning to Haifa and Other Stories

Ghassan Kanafani, translated by Barbara Harlow and Karen E. Riley

“[Kanafani] unabashedly depicts the hardship of life in the refugee camps, the agony of succumbing to numerous political or ideological shifts, and life nearly devoid of hope.... The novella Returning to Haifa speaks volumes about the enduring traumas of war.... In a moving, concise manner, this story touches upon many small issues that together contribute to the conflict between the Palestinians and Zionists including identity, language, class strife, and the deceptively difficult task of defining ‘homeland.’”

Men in the Sun and Other Palestinian Stories

Ghassan Kanafani, translated by Hilary Kilpatrick

“Far from being a simple parable, [Men in the Sun] depicts some often hidden aspects of the complex social and political reality of the Palestinians ... and is also a well-told story.” —Samir el-Youssef, Banipal

This important collection includes the stunning novella Men in the Sun (1962), the basis of the film The Deceived. Also in the volume are “The Land of Sad Oranges” (1958), “If You Were a Horse ...” (1961), “A Hand in the Grave” (1962), “The Falcon” (1961), “Letter from Gaza” (1956), and an excerpt from Umm Saad (1969).

What Is Political Islam?

Jocelyne Cesari

“One of the most significant books on political Islam written.” —Harun Karcic, Al Sharq Forum

“Cesari provides a new and powerful framework for understanding the conditions of possibility for political Islam in a wide range of countries.... Her book represents the most important work on political Islam to appear in more than a decade.”

—Peter Mandaville, George Mason University

“Provid[es] insightful analysis of the relationship between Islam and modern states.... Highly recommended.” —Choice

“A grounding work.... Fascinating and unique.”

—Melissa Finn, University of Waterloo

The debate continues unabated: Is political Islam decipherable through the tenets of the Islamic tradition—or is it a tool of secular actors who shrewdly misuse religious references? Is it an expression of modernity, or a return to the past?

Eschewing these dichotomies, Jocelyne Cesari demystifies the continuous process of interaction between secular and religious actors and institutions that is at the core of political mobilization in the name of Islam. Ranging from Senegal to Egypt, from Indonesia to Iraq, her analysis provides a much needed corrective to the conventional wisdom.

Jocelyne Cesari is professor of religion and politics at the University of Birmingham; senior research fellow at Georgetown University’s Berkley Center for Religion, Peace, and World Affairs; and professorial fellow at the Australian Catholic University.
